

HOUSING

Single-Student Approved Housing

All single students under the age of 27 must live in approved housing unless they live at home with their parents. Only admitted, matriculating students are eligible to live in approved housing beginning in their first assigned semester. Individuals enrolled in Continuing Education who are not admitted to a track and online-only students are not eligible to live in approved housing. Students who wish to live with a relative must receive an exception from the Housing & Student Living Office to live outside of approved housing. Exceptions are granted on a case-by-case basis and do not constitute an approval of the dwelling, but rather temporary approval of the living situation for the student. Exceptions are time-bound and may be withdrawn at any time. Those whose spouse has passed away or are divorced must receive an exception from the Housing & Student Living Office to live in approved housing. Failure to comply with approved housing guidelines will result in a hold being placed on the student record. This hold may prevent a student from registering for, adding, or dropping classes.

Individuals in the following categories must seek housing in the community market: (a) those who have not been admitted as BYU-Idaho students; (b) students who have been suspended for an Honor Code violation; (c) students on academic suspension; (d) married students; and (e) single students with children. All students living outside approved housing must provide the university with their current local street address while enrolled at BYU-Idaho. Students giving a false address are in violation of the Honor Code and subject to disciplinary action through the Student Honor Office, which may include suspension.

Student Living

Outside the home, the apartment represents the most natural and effective place for you to practice living according to the teachings of the Savior. Your genuine efforts to love and respect roommates, take responsibility for the culture within your apartment and throughout the complex, and honor the commitments you have made while helping others do the same will contribute to a spirit of unity, accountability, and integrity in the apartment. Student Living at BYU-Idaho is, in essence, a pattern for gospel-centered living reflective of Zion.

Centre Square Apartments

Centre Square is a new housing complex owned and operated by BYU-Idaho. The complex offers fully furnished 2, 3, and 4 bedroom apartments for men and women. Rent also includes all utilities, Internet, and cable TV.

Reservations for Centre Square are made on a first-come-first-serve basis. Contracts are available for winter, spring, and fall semesters, as well as for summer session and Christmas break. Students can purchase a contract online at byui.edu/housing.

Off-Campus Housing

A list of approved off-campus housing is maintained online at byui.edu/housing with information about price, facilities, furnishings, etc. Students desiring off-campus housing must make arrangements directly with the landlord or manager.

University-Owned Family Housing

Owned and operated by BYU-Idaho, University Village is located on the south end of campus and offers a choice of several dozen two-bedroom townhouses and flats. There are a limited number of 3-bedroom apartments as well. Rent includes electricity, heat, water/sewer, garbage, cable, and Internet. Each apartment has a dishwasher, oven, refrigerator, disposal, and washer/dryer hookups.

Community Housing

There is a variety of community housing options available in Rexburg. A list of information concerning off-campus community apartments may be obtained online at byui.edu/housing or from the Housing & Student Living Office. For additional information please contact:

UNIVERSITY STORE

The University Store is the place to find class required items as well as a wide variety of BYU-Idaho gear, gift ideas, general books, apartment necessities and hot new technology items. The following information can help students save time and money.

I Compare

The University Store has a great textbook price comparison tool called I-Compare. This tool can be found online at www.byuistore.com under the Textbooks tab. Simply browse for the books you need, and the store will show you the cheapest price from various online book sellers. “If we’re not the cheapest price, we’ll show you who is.”

Text Express

Text Express is your way to get first pick on all used and rental textbooks, saving you tons of money! You can sign up to reserve your textbooks even before you register for classes. This quick and convenient system helps make the first week of school so much easier. Just go to www.byuistore.com and click the drop-down menu under “Textbooks”, and then select “Reserve Your Books.” Once your course materials come in, we will pull them aside for you and you can just come pick them up when you get here. Save time and money.

Book Buybacks

The University Store buys back used textbooks during the testing week and at the end of each semester. The quicker students return their books back to the store, the more likely it is for them to get a good price on their return. Textbook Buyback is usually held in 3 different locations including 176A in the Manwaring Center, The Ricks Foyer, and the Hart Foyer. Students can stay in-the-know by following the “BYUI Store” on Facebook and Instagram.

Free Microsoft Office

Students can download the most recent version of Windows as well as Microsoft Office absolutely free. The link for this free download can be found at www.byuistore.com under the Technology tab. For any questions regarding the download call Microsoft at 1-888-396-1447. Contact the University Store with any questions at (208) 496-3400.
