The history of our forefathers and the places where they lived are inseparable. To properly present their existence and lifetime, a study of the history of their residences is necessary. The Work Projects Administration (WPA) was created in 1936 to preserve family and local histories. Soon we will have access to these histories and periodical articles online in our homes to learn and “add life” to our pedigree skeletons.

FACT or FICTION: It is important to analyze and verify the quality of the records, then compare them with other records, especially original records when possible. Until verified, use these histories for clues. Family and local histories could save you time and effort in your research.
