Introduction

In the words of President Gordon B. Hinckley, humanities “gives an aspect of living that is essential. You need technology. You need the professions. You need all of those things, but we need the heart also, and the humanities speak to the heart, men’s aspirations for the good and the beautiful.” LDS Church News March 19, 2005

The Humanities major is designed in the spirit of the ancient and proven curriculum of the liberal arts. The liberal arts are literally those arts appropriately exercised by a free people for their own sakes: learning that has as its end a well-trained mind, a virtuous character, and a spiritual and intellectual life rich in concepts and symbols. The liberal arts, more than other curriculum, develop students’ abilities to understand, interpret, and evaluate complex texts, to articulate clearly their own thinking, to make effective judgments, and to solve problems.

Career Opportunities

The Humanities major is designed for students who want a broad liberal education and an excellent preparation for professional schools such as law and medicine, for graduate programs in the humanities and other liberal arts, and for life as parents, citizens, and disciples. Liberal arts students also find their skills very much sought after by businesses. For many centuries the liberal arts have proven their value in preparing people for successful living and working. There are two points of focus in choosing a career: Things or People. A humanities degree is best suited with any career that deals with relationships with people – thus Business, Law, Education, Politics, etc.

A Humanities degree will prepare a student for a career because the skills acquired are those that educate the entire person, make them adaptable, thoughtful, and productive. Please speak to members of the Humanities and Philosophy department concerning your educational and professional goals for advisement and support.

Minors

The Humanities and Philosophy minors are a natural complement to majors such as English, History, Music, Art, and Foreign Language by providing a broader interdisciplinary perspective to these disciplines. Moreover, due to their broad foundation of knowledge and skills, students with a Humanities or Philosophy background are sought after for graduate programs in medicine, law, and business, as well as in the social sciences. These minors will also be of interest to students of unrelated disciplines who wish to temper their technical studies with a curriculum that will prepare them for a lifetime of clear thinking and enjoyment of the arts.

Clusters

A Humanities or Philosophy cluster is an excellent complement to virtually any university program. It allows students to achieve greater understanding of cultural and intellectual connections across multiple academic disciplines. We welcome and encourage students to cluster within the department and benefit from the depth and enjoyment such coursework provides.

Prerequisite: GREEK 201 Readings in the Ancient Greek. (Winter)
HEB 101 Biblical Hebrew I	(3:3:0:0)
This course covers Genesis through Deuteronomy. The focus of the course is for students to achieve a knowledge of Biblical Hebrew vocabulary and Biblical Hebrew grammar sufficient to be able to translate using Hebrew text and lexicon. Students will learn how to pronounce and read the Hebrew text out loud. Much of the time in this course centers on translating a few important chapters, but the course will also include a review and survey from Genesis to Deuteronomy. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
HEB 102 Biblical Hebrew II	(3:3:0:0)
This course covers Joshua through Malachi. This course emphasizes and adds to the skills acquired in the HEB 101. The focus of the course is for students to enhance and augment their knowledge and expertise from HEB 101. This course also adds Biblical Hebrew poetry in the translations. Much of the time in this course centers on translating a few important chapters, but this course will also include a review and survey from Joshua to Malachi. (Fall, Winter, Spring)

HUM 201 West Culture: Pre-History Renaissance	(3:3:0:0)
A study of the development of Western civilization, examining the art, architecture, music, and literature of Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece, Rome, and Medieval Europe [3000 BCE to 1400 AD] within historical, religious, and philosophical contexts. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
HUM 202 West Culture: Renaissance-Modern	(3:3:0:0)
A study of the cultural development of Western civilization as expressed through art, architecture, music, and literature from the Renaissance, Baroque, Classical, Romantic, and Modern periods [1400 AD-present]. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
HUM 250 Writing and Analysis in Humanities	(3:3:0:0)
Prerequisites: HUM 201 or HUM 202 or FDHUM 110 This is a writing intensive course that will help you hone your skill in analysis, argumentation, judgement, and research. The primary objective of this course is to help students think critically and analyze the arts effectively through clear writing. The course also requires students to prepare documents for and learn the process of obtaining an internship and eventual career in a humanities-related field. This course should also help you identify and defend that which is "virtuous, lovely, or of good report or praiseworthy" (Articles of Faith, 13) in the arts. (We will concentrate on the visual arts, music, and film). In addition, we will address questions of aesthetics (that branch of philosophy which addresses the questions: what is art? beauty? creativity? meaning in art?) using a case-based approach to address real problems in aesthetics and the humanities. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
HUM 260 Critical Theory and Interpretation	(3:3:0:0)
This course explores critical theory and interpretation in literature and the arts. Students will examine a variety of critical theories and models of interpretation including formalism, archetypal criticism, historical and social criticism, psychoanalytic criticism, feminism, and reader-response analysis. They will apply these and other theories to the major literary genres-poetry, drama, fiction-and to the visual arts. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
HUM 300R Readings in the Humanities	(1-3:0:0:0)
Repeatable Course: may earn maximum of 6 credits A 1-3 variable credit independent study course with instructor oversight, this course exposes students to great works of literature, theater, and music as well as academic treatises. The student, in consultation with a Humanities professor, will choose the texts, plays, musical compositions, and essays from a pre-approved list. Students should complete the required three credits over at least two different semesters. (Fall, Winter, Spring)
